The Receivership Remedy

A Health and Safety Receivership is a powerful tool available to cities and counties to eliminate substandard properties. The receivership remedy saves time and preserves resources, sending a powerful and positive message to the community.

IDENTIFY

1

When identifying a nuisance property for intervention, documentation is crucial. Officials will note neighborhood complaints, prior reports, and take photos/videos as support that a danger to the community exists. Property owners are given a chance to remediate.

APPOINTMENT

2

If the property owner fails to abate the nuisance, a receiver is nominated through court petition. Once appointed, the receiver assumes immediate control of the property, and develops and submits a rehabilitation plan for court approval.

REHABILITATION

3

Once the plan is approved by the appointing court, work begins to bring the property back into compliance. This can take place through a partial or full rehab, demolition of a severely dilapidated structure, or an as-is sale to a qualified buyer.

DISCHARGE

4

The receiver is discharged once the work is deemed complete by the court. Safety is restored for the property and the community.
